UNIVERSITY of NORTH CAROLINA WILMINGTON

Early Application, Apply Today!

Hey there, Sammy!

We just wanted to let you know that UNCW's Early Action application deadline has been extended. If you apply before November 15th, you'll hear back from us on or before January 20th—more than two months earlier than you will if you apply to the regular decision deadline. The sooner you're officially one of the #FutureSeahawks, the better!

Apply Now!

Though Hurricane Florence has impacted Wilmington and eastern North Carolina, Seahawks are #UNCWstrong and more resilient than ever. The Dub is a place for adventure, creativity, discovery, and excellence: a place where applied learning brings us outside our campus to help and experience. We think you'd make a great addition to the family.

Imagine yourself here. Imagine yourself home.

UNCW: More than a beach school

Hey, Sammy!

The University of North Carolina Wilmington is proud to be NC’s coastal university. Of course, that also makes us the beach school—but we’re so much more. The city of Wilmington is one of the best parts of being a Seahawk! ILM is a vibrant city full of art, culture, nature and fun—

1. The beaches, obviously! Wrightsville, Carolina and Kure beaches are minutes away and each has their own special vibe. Learn to surf, try stand-up paddleboarding or just lay out on the sand.
2. Coffee shops galore. From the Wilmington-born chain Port City Java to indies like Grinder’s and 24 South, you’ll always have a caffeine fix or a low-key study spot around the corner.
3. The Riverwalk. The most vibrant part of downtown has gorgeous water views, access to shops and food, and hosts everything from summer concerts to craft festivals during the year.
4. Annual festivals. Whether you’d prefer to watch the parade at the NC Azalea Festival in the spring or catch a documentary at the Cucalorus Festival in the fall, there’s a grand affair to look forward to in every season.
5. Airlie Gardens. Known for gorgeous foliage, holiday light shows and butterfly releases, you’re not a true Wilmingtonian till you’ve walked through the gardens at Airlie.
6. Foodie’s paradise: This year, six Wilmington restaurants made it on “Diners, Drive-Ins and Dives.” Seafood, Mexican or the iconic blend of Thai and Vietnamese—ILM grub spots are fame-worthy.
7. History perfectly preserved. A 280-year-old city has plenty of history to explore, from the antebellum wonder of Bellamy Mansion to the floating WWII memorial, the Battleship North Carolina. Take a tour of downtown—standard, spooky or drawn by horses!
8. Vibrant arts & culture scene. ILM is home to dozens of art galleries, museums and independent bookstores. Thalian Hall hosts dance exhibitions, plays and concerts. Your typical Thursday night could include swing dancing, trampoline parks, trivia, open mics, escape rooms, comedy club shows, $2 movies at Lumina Theater or $1 tacos from our beloved Islands Fresh-Mex Grill. The only time you’ll be cooped up in your room with Netflix is when you want to be.

Can you see yourself on campus at the Dub? Apply now.

Arts at UNCW

Hey there, Sammy!

At UNCW, we believe in giving flight to imagination. That's why we have a wealth of majors in humanities and liberal arts—the degree programs that elevate critical thinking, aesthetics, and creativity.

The Bachelors of Arts and Bachelors of Fine Arts degrees at UNCW is housed under the College of Arts and Sciences.

- Anthropology
- Art & Art History
- Communication Studies
- Creative Writing
- English
- Film Studies
- History
- International Studies
- Music
- Philosophy & Religion
- Public & International Affairs
- Theatre
- World Languages & Cultures

At UNCW, degrees are more than just a piece of paper you earn: they are collections of experiences. You can watch incredible dance and music acts that tour the world right on campus in Kenan Auditorium. You can meet and network with the foremost experts in your field at events like Writers Week or Communication Studies Day. You can walk through panoramas of student artwork in the Boseman Gallery or scattered through Randall Library. You can work directly with English language-learners in Wilmington schools. You can view award-winning documentaries at the annual Cucalorus Festival.

Humanities and liberal arts programs at UNCW place equal focus on developing students' minds and preparing them for successful, meaningful careers—preparing them to make a difference in the world around them.

"I chose to major in Communication because of how diverse and widely applicable the major is. I work closely with incredible faculty, meet like-minded students and work on projects for real companies and organizations. Being a Communication Studies student has allowed me to explore my interests, travel the world while studying abroad, intern with an amazing company and be prepared to work after graduation. I have adored my time at UNCW and will look back on all of the fond memories I have created within my major."

– Micaela Murphy, Class of 2019

Join the arts communities at UNCW and in the vibrant cultural hub of Wilmington.

Sciences at UNCW

Hey there, Sammy!

Since the University of North Carolina Wilmington is NC's coastal university and only 7 miles from the coast, you might have guessed that it's a premier school for students of marine biology. The College of Arts and Sciences offers plenty of STEM major programs to explore at the Dub.

- Biology & Marine Biology
- Chemistry & Biochemistry
- Computer Science
- Environmental Sciences
- Mathematics & Statistics
- Pre-Engineering \(2+2\)
- Sociology & Criminology

Our sciences produce some of the most compelling applied learning opportunities at UNCW. Undergraduate students often work side-by-side in labs with faculty. You might research oyster reproduction trends at the Center for Marine Science or discover new ways to test freshwater quality in a Directed Independent Study project. You might get involved with face aging technology at the Institute for Interdisciplinary Identity Science, or you might map ocean floors. Your research will give you a leg up for graduate or medical school if that's your goal—if not, it will train you to be an analytical thinker and problem-solver ready to soar in any career.

UNCW's medium size and impressive 18:1 student-to-faculty ratio make undergraduate research and applied learning are top priorities. A degree in science means getting your hands dirty, solving real-world problems one equation or theory at a time.

"UNCW's Chemistry Department is so amazing because students have direct access to their professors through office hours and they always greet you with a smile whenever you come ask questions. The amount of undergraduate research at this institution is unbelievable; I got started in the second semester of my freshman year. At UNCW, I feel like more than just a number and as a graduating senior, if I had to go back and do it again, I wouldn't change a single thing."

– Xander Hoffman, Class of 201

Hey there, Nicole!

Wilmington, North Carolina is home to a thriving business ecosystem, especially for startups. Meanwhile, UNCW's Cameron School of Business provides a world-class, global, hands-on education for students who hope to enter the business world, whether in ILM or beyond.

The Cameron School of Business is AACSB-accredited, which lands us in the top 20% of business schools nationwide. 94% of Cameron graduates have jobs or enter grad school within 6 months of graduating, and Cameron alumni make up some of the Dub's most successful and involved alumni. As a business major at UNCW, you'll have the opportunity to participate in the Cameron Executive Network, receiving one-on-one mentorship and advice from a seasoned executive. You might get hands-on stock market experience through UNCW's real-dollar, student-managed investment fund, raising money that goes back into scholarships for Cameron students. You might consult for a client firm in Prague, presenting your findings to a company across the pond over spring break. You'll be able to complete internships that show you the ins and outs of the business world, whether your chosen industry is sports marketing or cloud banking.

A business degree is more versatile and valuable than ever. Whether your passions take you across the world or keep you grounded in our thriving Port City, Cameron will prepare you for a successful career.

—"The Cameron School of Business has afforded me a better understanding of such a complicated field in the professional atmosphere that they offer. They provide the Cameron Executive Network, a foundation for professional connection, and the Transatlantic Business School Alliance, an opportunity for abroad education. CSB is one of the highlights of an already stellar university."

— Charles Bloomer, Class of 202

The opportunities in the Cameron School of Business await. Imagine yourself here. Imagine yourself home.
